Today you’ll be amazed as the California Science Center illuminates one of the greatest wonders on earth – the human body! On its west coast debut of the largest Body World exhibition in a decade, this show has all new, real human-body specimens. These bodies were generously bequeathed upon death of the individuals and after extensive review by an ethics committee have been included in the exhibit for educational purposes. The Science Center’s mission for this fascinating show is to ‘stimulate curiosity and science learning,’ specifically focusing on the graceful, intricate and awe-inspiring design of the human body, emphasizing health and wellness specific to life in the 21st century. What this show does that normal medical models cannot do is show the physiology, anatomy and even how disease works itself out in the body in a safe and informative environment. See nearly 200 individual plastinates (the term for a preserved body or organ for medical education) including organs, body parts, translucent slices and 20 whole-body figures. Enjoy a lunch on your own at the Science Center’s café Trimana.
